

JAPANESE SHELL AND SINK AMERICAN GUNBOAT PANAY

Heavy Casualties Feared on Ship Carrying Refugees From Nanking

Went down almost immediately. The last direct radios from the ship were heard at 1:30 p. m. Sunday when she was in contact with the United States gunboat Luzon. The operator on the Panay stopped sending in the middle of a sentence, and it was feared then the Panay had been hit.

United States officials in Shanghai tried throughout the night to get in touch with the Panay and were not gravely worried until 10 a. m., when they received the first reports the ship had been sunk.

The disaster seemed to be the worst suffered by United States armed forces in China since the Chinese-Japanese war started outside Peiping the night of July 7.

The cruiser Augusta, flagship of the American Asiatic fleet, was hit by a shell of undetermined origin at Shanghai during August and one sailor, Frederick J. Falgout, of Raceland, La., was killed, and 17 other sailors were wounded slightly.

During the same month Chinese airplanes bombed the American luxury liner President Hoover while she was loading American refugees who were being evacuated from Shanghai.

RESCUE FIRST CONCERN.

There was an immediate effort here to obtain additional information but it was anticipated that a complete story of the disaster would not be available until an official inquiry is made.

The first concern of American authorities was to get rescue ships to the spot.

It was believed that 11 American civilians, in addition to the ship's crew and personnel of the United States embassy in Nanking, were aboard when the Panay went down. It also was reported that two Italian newspaper correspondents and several persons from the Italian embassy in Nanking were aboard.

The Panay was anchored in the Yangtze off the American embassy until midday Saturday, when the Japanese invaded the waterfront and placed batteries which began firing on Chinese craft in the river.

As shells fell around the American warship, Captain Hughes decided to go upstream out of the danger zone.

The last three Americans to go aboard were Mayell, Alley and Squires.

Americans Still in Nanking. They reported that a number of Americans still were in Nanking, where heavy fighting was going on between Chinese and Japanese forces.

United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson, according to last reports, was in Hankow. He went to that city on the gunboat Luzon when the Chinese foreign office was removed from Nanking during evacuation of civilian ministries of the Chinese central government.

He left the embassy in charge of J. Hall Paxton, a veteran of the United States consular service in China. Paxton was in charge of the consular establishment in Nanking when Chinese Communist forces looted the city in 1927 and forced Americans and others to flee for their lives under cover of a barrage from foreign warships.

Nanking Americans Listed. The United States State Department received reports in Washington that the following 15 American nationals were in Nanking on December 7 and some of them may have been on the Panay.

A spokesman officially confirmed the "bombing" and sinking of the Panay at 11:20 a. m.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell was on the flagship and was reported to have canceled his plan to sail for Manila tomorrow for the annual overhaul of the big cruiser.

As commander of the Asiatic fleet it was believed Admiral Yarnell would remain here until the Panay incident was settled.

There still was no definite report as to how the ship was sunk. Since few Chinese bombing planes have been active in the Nanking area in recent days, it was assumed that if the vessel was hit by aerial bombs they must have come from Japanese planes, which were extremely active in the Nanking-Wuhu area.

Messages reaching Shanghai before noon said efforts of the gunboat Oahu to reach the Panay's survivors were handicapped by the fact that the usual buoys marking the Yangtze river's channel had been removed by the Chinese in their effort to prevent Japanese warships from pursuing their vessels.

"Reports reaching Kiukiang assert that the Japanese are raining bombs and dropping shells all along the Yangtze near the point where the Panay went down," one message said.

"Present indications are that the Oahu may not reach Hoshien until tomorrow."

Heavy Japanese Attack. All reports indicated the Japanese had launched one of the most furious offensives of the entire war in their final drive to smash an estimated 300,000 Chinese soldiers who were retreating from the Nanking area.

A spokesman for Lieutenant General Iwane Matsui, Japanese commander on the Shanghai-Nanking front, said that Japanese forces had occupied Pukow, across the river from Nanking, cutting one of the principal Chinese lines of retreat. He said the Yangtze river was "constantly under fire."

Other Japanese recalled that the Japanese last week had warned 11 foreigners and all foreign warships in the Nanking area that they should move to places of safety as a major attack impended.

In announcing the sinking of the Panay the press office aboard the Augusta confirmed earlier United Press dispatches that one or more vessels belonging to the Standard Oil Company also were sunk. The Standard Oil ships were accompanying the Panay, presumably believing that the presence of the warship would prevent attacks by either the Japanese or the Chinese.

Survivors Are Landed. The press office of the Augusta also confirmed United Press dispatches that Captain Hughes and Secretary Acheson were among the survivors landed at Hoshien.

A Japanese army spokesman said he knew nothing about reports that the Japanese forces in the Nanking-Wuhu area had been ordered to fire on "any vessel" appearing in this region.

British reports insisted the Japanese commander at Wuhu had said he had these instructions and

PANAY SPAT FIRE AT HER ATTACKER; 54 ARE RESCUED

British Destroyer and U. S. Gunboat Oahu Speed to Tragic Scene.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(P)—The Navy Department said tonight the American gunboat Panay was bombed and sunk by an unidentified airplane today in the Yangtze river 15 or 20 miles from Nanking.

The fragmentary message received here said there were 54 survivors and that the names of "lost personnel" were not known.

The message reporting the tragedy said the Panay fired several rounds from her anti-aircraft battery at the attacking plane, but that apparently it failed to find its target.

The Standard Oil ships, anchored near by the Panay, had refugees on board. These vessels were the Melping, Meian, and the Meisian.

Secretary Hull said he hoped he would be able to assemble all the facts early tomorrow morning.

Carries Crew of 55.

The Panay normally carries a crew of 55 officers and men. Several American civilians were believed also to have been aboard, although there was no immediate official confirmation.

Dispatches from Shanghai said nine Americans were known to be aboard, including four embassy staff officials.

The British destroyer Bee and the American gunboat Oahu were proceeding to the scene under forced draft, but were so far away that many hours must elapse before they can reach there.

The Bee was proceeding from Wuhu, 150 miles up river from Nanking, and the Oahu lifted anchor at Kiukiang, 300 miles distant.

The Panay, a small river gunboat, 170 feet in length, was commanded by Lieutenant Commander J. J. Hughes, of New York city.

Other officers aboard were Lieutenant A. F. Andrews, Ensign Dennis H. Biverson, a former resident of Wisconsin, and Medical Lieutenant C. G. Graziop, formerly of Pennsylvania.

Refuge for Off-Duty. Four members of the American embassy staff had made it a practice during the last few days to take refuge aboard the Panay for rest and sleep during their hours off duty.

The United States consulate general in Shanghai recently listed Nanking refugees aboard the Panay as:

J. Hall Paxton, second secretary of the United States embassy at Nanking; Captain Frank Roberts, assistant military attaché; Roy Squires, Norman Alley, James Marshall, Tillman Durbin, Norman Soong, Weldon James, T. J. Broderick and A. L. Patterson.

Navy officers said, however, the first report of the incident was made in a telephone message from Nanking to Shanghai and relayed to Washington.

The message was signed by George Acheson Jr., second secretary in charge of the embassy in Nanking.

Was 10 Years Old. Built 10 years ago in Shanghai, the Panay was a 450-ton river gunboat especially designed for service with the American gunboat fleet on China's pirate-infested rivers and was armed with a main battery of two three-inch guns, several .50-caliber anti-aircraft machine guns, and 10 standard .30-caliber machine guns.

He said night raids were conducted against pirate nests along the rivers.

Classed as a river patrol boat, the Panay made 17.2 knots at her trials, and was among the finest of the international river patrol vessels in the Chinese area.

Too small to risk a Pacific crossing, the Panay was one of the fleet of tiny warships destined never to visit the country for whose service it was built.

had given this as an excuse for firing on the British vessels which were attacked at Wuhu Sunday morning.

The Japanese previously had accused British merchant ships of evacuating retreating Chinese forces and thus "violating British neutrality."

The spokesman said he had "no information" about attacks on any foreign vessels. He admitted, however, that the British consulate general had informed him of its reports of attacks on the Ladybird and other British ships at Wuhu.

A Japanese naval spokesman said that Japanese airplanes had been raiding the whole central war area for 48 hours and had conducted bombing operations as far inland as Sian-fu, the capital of Shensi province.

He said night raids were conducted on Nanking with the aid of Very lights.

Occupies Walls of Nanking. The army spokesman said the Japanese had completed occupation of the walls of Nanking west and south of the Chungshan gate in the eastern walls of Nanking, just south of the Lotus lake, and gradually were extending their area of occupation along all the walls of the city.

He said that Chinese soldiers retreating up the Yangtze river in small steamers and junks were under constant aerial and artillery bombardment, and that, for this reason, "it is highly advisable that foreign vessels stay entirely away from the zone of activities or halt their movements."

He said that a vessel at anchor was not likely to be mistaken for a Chinese military transport since these ships naturally would be moving upstream as fast as they could.

gradually forcing their way towards the government center.

The Japanese occupied the Nanking waterfront Friday night and on Saturday morning moved up big guns to blast Chinese forces holding fortified positions in a flour mill and other buildings.

They began a heavy bombardment in mid-afternoon and shells started exploding in the river around the British gunboats and the Panay as well as merchant craft, including some ships belonging to the Standard Oil Company of New York.

Captain Hughes immediately ordered the anchors up and started the Panay upstream in an effort to get out of range.

We passed a number of British ships around the landing hulk of the Jardine S. S. Company which were hoisting their anchors to move upstream and later caught up with more British ships moving up the river.

The cannonading was getting heavier ahead of us.

Shells Falling Near Ship. Shells began falling all around the Panay and on both banks of the river. The batteries were firing at 15-second intervals.

Captain Hughes ordered us below decks.

At intervals all of us went to the decks.

The ship was jammed with members of the embassy staff from Nanking, civilians, and sailors of the crew.

The shells were coming so fast it seemed inevitable the Panay would be hit.

No Place To Run. Big geysers of water were splashed just ahead of us.

Sailors were about cracking jokes to reassure the civilians.

I have been under fire repeatedly during this war—at Shanghai and around Nanking—but I had not been through anything like this.

There was no place to run! We just had to sit still and trust to luck that the Panay would get through.

Captain Hughes appeared now and then—calm and smiling.

It was believed that about nine Americans still were in Nanking—most of them in refuge in the bomb-proof dugout in the embassy compound.

The whole southern section of the city was bombarded for hours before the Japanese broke through the south gates.

JOHN A. MOON, 46, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Funeral Services Will Be Held Tomorrow.

John Alexander Moon, 46, of 641 Lillian street, S. E., died yesterday at a hospital after one month's illness.

He had been employed by the Carroll Furniture Company about 12 years, and previously was connected with the sanitation department of the city for 10 years.

Born and reared in Atlanta, Mr. Moon was a deacon in the Confederate Avenue Baptist church.

He leaves his wife, a daughter, Mrs. G. Gamadonis; two sisters, Mrs. John Kamp and Mrs. Gus Hanjarias; a brother, Hiram Moon, and a grandson, Barry Gamadonis, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Confederate Avenue Baptist church. The Rev. E. L. Barlow will officiate and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery under the direction of Sam R. Greenberg & Company.

APOLOGY BY JAPAN MADE THREE WAYS

Ambassador, Vice Admiral and Consular Officials Express Regrets.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—(P)—Japan's apology for the shelling of the Panay was expressed in several ways.

Japanese Ambassador Shigeru Kawagoe telegraphed regrets to United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson who is at Hankow, 300 miles inland from Shanghai.

The American envoy moved to Hankow when the Chinese government dispersed to three inland cities in the face of Japan's advancing war machine.

Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commander of Japan's naval forces, called on Rear Admiral Yarnell to express his official regrets.

Japanese consular officials similarly presented regrets to United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss.

A Japanese army communiqué asserted Chinese troops were retreating up the river and American vessels were in the Chinese.

THANKS

a Million

Not since the Civil War days, when it offered its all on the altar of the Confederacy, has the NC&StL been confronted with such a desperate situation. As a result, with other railroads, it has asked, and will ask, Constituted Authority to permit it to partially restore rate levels, freight and passenger, obtaining a few years ago.

The facts in connection with the general railroad situation, as well as its individual problems, have been submitted to thousands with the request that, if what the NC&StL proposes seems in the public interest, it might enjoy general public support.

The response has been wonderful—the most heartening event which has occurred in a long time. With such supporting private ownership and operation of railroads not only can endure, but may prosper. It will be impossible to thank each of its friends individually, so the NC&StL takes this means of saying to each of you "Thanks a Million."

And in return the NC&StL promises, to the extent money is available, to give its patrons the best the art of railroading affords.

Health Chief's Blood Aids Epidemic Baby

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Four babies, stricken by the mysterious epidemic diarrhea that brought swift death to 11 infants in St. Elizabeth's hospital were pronounced cured today.

Andres Kozlowski, one of three others still ill, was better after a blood transfusion yesterday for which Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, was an experimental donor. Sulfanilamide was injected into Dr. Bundesen's leg prior to the transfusion and his treated blood was given the infant.

FLOODS THREATEN MORE COAST HOMES

5,000 Are Without Places to Stay; Thousands of Acres Under Water.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Flood-burdened rivers of northern California threatened new destruction to homes and agricultural lands today as the run-off from three days' torrential rain poured seaward.

Already upwards of 5,000 persons were homeless and thousands of acres of fertile lands were under water. Three deaths were recorded and property damage was expected to run into the millions.

Clearing weather after a night of moderate to heavy rainfall, however, gave promise of relief. The Sacramento river and its tributaries were reducing in the upper valleys but between Red Bluff and Princeton it was above flood level. E. H. Fletcher, weather bureau observer at Sacramento, predicted "critical stages" in the river as far as Knight's Landing, 20 miles above Sacramento, late today and tonight.

The Sacramento smashed through the levee at Butte City at three places today and inundated the entire river settlement of about 1,200 population. Four airplanes dropped bundles of empty sacks to about 500 volunteer workers today to speed sandbag reinforcements of levees along the rising Sacramento near Willows.

Between 750 and 1,000 persons were believed to have left their homes in the 25-mile stretch along the west bank of the river from Hamilton City to Butte City.

NORTH BUFFALO ROADS ARE CLEARED OF SNOW. BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Hundreds of snow fighters, working under a bright sun that shone for the first time in a week, attacked secondary roads and streets in North Buffalo suburbs today to complete lifting the siege of a three-day blizzard that took six lives.

As cordons of bluecoats turned back curious sightseers at the Kenmore village line, admitting only persons who had "official" business in the stricken area, plows bucked 15-foot drifts to break trail for truck with food and medicines.

PRESIDENT SELLS 1,000 HOLIDAY TABLE TREES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—About 1,000 New York city families will have Christmas trees this year produced by President Roosevelt.

As hundreds of thousands of trees poured into railroad yards tonight, the President's Hyde Park estate contributed 1,000 miniature "table trees" to the market.

Panay 3d U. S. Ship Damaged in China

The sinking of the United States gunboat Panay in the Yangtze river yesterday was the third serious incident involving American ships in Chinese waters during the Japanese invasion.

On August 20, the U. S. S. Augusta, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, was struck by a shell of unknown origin at Shanghai. Seaman F. J. Falgout, of Raceland, La., was killed and 20 others were wounded.

On August 31, the steamship President Hoover, now grounded at Formosa, was bombed from the air by Chinese planes while proceeding to Shanghai to remove 350 Americans from the Yangtze river.

The 2,900-ton liner was ordered to turn about and make port to Kobe, Japan. Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, also ordered the steamship President McKim, which was following the Hoover closely, to retreat. This ended evacuation of American civilians from Shanghai on American liners.

Although liners of other nations have continued to dock at Shanghai, American ships have been refused permission to enter the war zone.

The Hoover was making her second rescue trip from Manila when bombed by the Chinese planes, which were of American manufacture. The Chinese government accepted full responsibility for the bombing and announced that pilots thought the vessel was a Japanese troop ship. Japanese destroyers were nearby, it was reported.

MOTHER STRANGLES SON, 21, AND SELF.

Daughter Spared Because She Is Light Sleeper, Coroner Reports.

GUILFORD, N. Y., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. A. H. Evans, 55, strangled her son, Robert, 21, to death and then took her own life by strangulation early today. Coroner Boname reported tonight.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Evans' daughter, Phyllis, 26, a teacher in the Oxford Academy who spends her week-ends at the family home, the coroner said.

Alarmed when her mother and brother failed to appear, she went to their bedrooms at noon and discovered the bodies, Dr. Boname said.

"I believe I was spared because I am a light sleeper," Dr. Boname quoted the daughter as saying. "I awakened several times last night to find my mother in my room."

The coroner said Mrs. Evans had gone to Robert's room sometime between midnight and daybreak. She used chloroform to anesthetize him, he said, and then tightened a belt about his neck.

Then, he continued, the mother went to her room and tightened a stock as a garrot about her neck, then poured chloroform on a cloth across her face.

Dr. Boname said worry over her husband's ill health had mentally deranged Mrs. Evans.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR HORACE SHAW SR.

Last rites for Horace T. Shaw Sr., 70, retired bank official and farmer, who died Friday, were held yesterday afternoon in the Methodist church at Madison, Ga.

Dr. W. A. Shelton, the Rev. Z. C. Hayes and the Rev. John H. Finley, officiated. Burial was in Madison cemetery.

Mr. Shaw was born in Madison and was connected with the Bank of Madison for 30 years before resigning in 1919 to farm. He conducted a drive to raise funds to build a church in Madison and established a mission in China in the name of his mother. He moved here and joined the Peachtree Methodist church, living at 4 Cheshire Bridge road.

DR. J. H. FINLEY AGREES TO HEAD HALL OF FAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Chancellor Harry Woodburn Chase, of New York University, said today Dr. John H. Finley, editor of the New York Times, had accepted directorship of the university's hall of fame.

Dr. Finley succeeds the late Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, editor, poet and former United States ambassador to Italy, who died recently.

The hall of fame, established in 1900, contains bronze busts of 72 men and women prominent in American history.

W. B. DISBRO SR., 85, ILL A MONTH, DIES

Retired Lumber Executive Entered Business in This City in 1886.

William B. Disbro Sr., retired lumber executive, died yesterday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Roy C. Morrison, 87 North Muscogee avenue, after an illness of about one month. He was 85.

Born in Bellevue, Ohio, Mr. Disbro entered the lumber business in Atlanta in 1886, in partnership with David Woodward. He later formed his own company, known as the W. B. Disbro Company, on Whitehall street. He retired in 1932.

In addition to serving 16 years on the Carnegie Library board, he was a member of the board of stewards of St. Mark Methodist church and was instrumental in the erection of the Park Street church. Mr. Disbro had lived at the home of his daughter the past several years.

Other survivors are his widow; a son, W. B. Disbro Jr.; two granddaughters, Carolyn Disbro and Barbara Morrison; and a grandson, Roy Morrison Jr., all of Atlanta, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning from Spring Hill by Dr. Lester Rumble. Burial will be in West View cemetery under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

SENIOR FOUND DEAD IN PRINCETON FIRE

Seven Other Students Escaped From Blaze.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12.—(AP)—A fire early today in Little hall, Princeton University, caused the death of Lawrence H. Clark, a Hollywood (Cal.) senior.

Clark was found lying on the floor of a bedroom overcome by smoke. He died in the university infirmary.

Seven other undergraduates, whose rooms are in the building, escaped uninjured. Fire Chief Charles Muth said the fire probably started from a discarded cigarette.

Clark is the son of Rufus W. Clark III, Detroit (Mich.) chemical manufacturer, and Mrs. B. Holt Clark, of Hollywood. He attended the Asheville school in Asheville, N. C., before entering Princeton.

BILLION FOR BONDS

Georgia Buys $12,161,550 in 'Baby' Securities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Cash sales of government "baby" bonds have crossed the billion-dollar mark. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced today. Georgia sales amount to $12,161,550.

About 1,200,000 persons have bought approximately 4,500,000 of the bond units, since they were first offered March 1, 1935. The bonds are sold in several denominations, having maturity values of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

Ownership of the savings bonds by about 1,200,000 people marks the obligations as "the most widely held single security in the United States," the treasury said.

DR. JOHN M. GILL DIES; PROMINENT METHODIST

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. John Montgomery Gill, 81, one of the senior members of the Maryland conference of the Methodist Protestant church, died in his sleep here today at the home of his son, Robert J. Gill, Baltimore attorney and his only immediate survivor.

Dr. Gill was born in Heathville, Va., attended William and Mary College and Westminster Theological Seminary.

EXPORTS TO JAPAN UP.

TOKYO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Japan's imports from the United States were 65.3 per cent greater during the first 10 months of 1937 than for the like period in 1936, figures of the commerce ministry showed today. Japanese exports to America rose 20.6 per cent.

WARM WIND AND RAIN PREDICTED FOR TODAY

Shifting winds and slowly rising temperatures brought relief from winter's cold to Atlantans and people generally throughout the south yesterday.

Following their advantage, warm winds from the south and south-southwest today will blow cloudy skies and warmer temperatures into Georgia, and light rains or snow will change during the day to rain, according to the weatherman's prediction for Atlanta this morning.

The mercury yesterday dropped to a low of 21 degrees at 6:30 o'clock and then climbed to 42 during the day, the Candler field weather station reported. It predicted temperatures ranging between 32 and 48 degrees for today.

JOBS IN HOUSING PROGRAM

An era of rising employment all over the nation, continuing for several years, will result from the housing program suggested by President Roosevelt, if it is properly administered and if it receives the proper co-operation from private financial and construction interests.

This is the conclusion of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, after a study of the construction situation made some months ago, before the President sent his housing message to congress.

The Academy did not submit this study to the White House but, in accord with its custom, published it for the dissemination of scientific data on national and international affairs. It is one of several, made each year by the Academy, on subjects of current public interest.

Among the findings by the Academy is the important fact that there is, today, an acute demand for new homes throughout the nation. Added to this present demand is the deduction, based upon census figures, that this demand will increase steadily, at least until 1955.

It is also stated that a broad, well-organized and efficient housing program, on a national basis, would tend to hold down costs and would bring the cost of good housing easily within reach of this expanding market.

That such a program would inevitably provide work for great numbers of men and women and would have a marked effect upon the national unemployment problem is self-evident.

No industry is more important to the economic well-being of the nation than construction. It has always been a major index to the nation's prosperity status.

In addition to the tens of thousands in the building trades who would be directly affected by this job-creating program, there are many times the number who would find work in the allied industries, those which manufacture the materials for building, the real estate interests, the mortgage loan companies and associations and, in fact, almost every branch of constructive activity.

The proposal to ease the requirements for Federal Housing Administration loans for the erection of new homes is an important move toward the starting of this flow of new activity into the American business picture. Co-ordination of all activities, federal and private, involved in a wide home building program should follow as quickly as possible.

If this is done, the sound of the hammer and the saw and the movement of the mason's trowel may provide that "pump priming" impetus which, backed by a restoration of business confidence, is the surest way to re-establish this nation on the forward road to permanent security for all.

THE WRONG SOLUTION

Senator Capper, of Kansas, has approached the problem presented by marriage and divorce laws in America from the wrong side. He has proposed in the senate a constitutional amendment to empower congress to enact laws for uniform regulation of marriage and divorce.

The senator reveals either ignorance of, or scorn for, the basis of the American system of government. Marriage and divorce are entirely within the province of the states' police powers and, under the dual governmental system of America, are no business of the federal government.

No one will deny that reform in these laws is urgently needed. There is a woeful lack of uniformity among the various states. Divorce is too easy in some states and too difficult in others. Likewise marriage can be effected in some states almost before the principals are aware of the fact they have legally been made one, while the obstacles that other states place before the would-be brides and bridegrooms are so difficult they constitute an actual menace to moral society itself.

Uniformity is much to be desired, but the road to secure it is through co-operation of the various states. Congress cannot assume such paternalistic jurisdiction over the affairs of citizens of the different states without arrogating to itself an authority never contemplated when the American system of government was formulated.

Such an amendment as that proposed by the Kansas would be on a par with the late unregretted prohibition amendment and others which have sought, unwisely, to concentrate control of the personal affairs of citizens in the hands of Washington bureaucracy.

Josef Hofmann says that, contrary to popular belief, short fingers are superior to long ones in playing the piano. Maybe, but not all stubby fingers are as fleet on the keyboard as Hofmann's.

It was like the old A. E. F. days—you know, when our marines at Shanghai said, "You can't stand there, soldier," and the Japanese moved on.

The thrifty Yankee reliever who, desirous of riding to his new PWA job 18 miles in the country, bought a new auto with 2,400 old-fashioned one-dollar bills, still holds something of a record.

You can't tell papa that Santa Claus comes only once a year. The bills tell him otherwise.

A "floating dollar" is suggested. It sounds impossible, but that is no longer an argument.

POVERTY IN ITALY

Conditions of life for the average man under Fascist rule are revealed in a report by Dr. Carl T. Schmidt, of the economics department of Columbia University, who has recently completed a study of labor, land and property in Italy. Dr. Schmidt went to Italy as a fellow of the Social Science Research Council of New York City.

Among Italian rural classes, says Dr. Schmidt, a condition "uncomfortably close to serfdom" is developing. Fascism, he says, means subjection to bureaucracy and the propertied groups for millions of poor peasants and agricultural workers. The Italian policy under Mussolini operates in the interest of absentee landowners, commercialized agricultural and monopolistic capital.

"Real wages have been forced down to miserable subsistence levels, the uncertainty of employment has increased seriously, and the eight-hour day in agriculture is forgotten," says Dr. Schmidt.

The proof of growing poverty is seen in the statistics dealing with food consumption. Since 1930 both the quantity and quality of food available per capita has fallen appreciably. At best the Italian worker suffered from inadequate diet, but now the average wheat consumption is lower than immediately before the World War. Meats, sugar and fats all show severe shrinkages in consumption, while a sharp drop in the use of salt indicates less cooked food is being eaten.

Housing and sanitary conditions, reports Dr. Schmidt, are deplorable in many districts.

Thus it is seen that Fascism, in its ultimate result means subjecting the citizen to the utmost in bureaucratic exploitation, making of him a virtual slave and confiscating his labor for the benefit of ruthless autocracy and predatory capital.

That the people of Italy are not blind to their own misery and that there are frequent domestic troubles to harass Il Duce in his program of personal power is evidenced in the following from Dr. Schmidt's report:

"Fascism has not succeeded in so completely suppressing every form of resistance as to permit the unhindered imposition of the discipline of poverty. Among the great masses of workers, peasants and small proprietors there is grumbling and criticism, resentment against their continually declining incomes, the favors bestowed on big landlords and employers, the high prices charged by the monopolies and the heavy taxes levied by the government, the toll of colonial warfare and the threat of war to come.

"Such unrest at times breaks forth violently, even in the countryside. Observers report sporadic uprisings against Fascist officials, demonstrations of protest against high taxes, wage cuts, and foreclosure sales, always ending in armed suppression, arrests and prison sentences."

DANGEROUS WEATHER FORECASTING

During the past year six pilots of army, navy or commercial planes have been killed while on official flights to collect meteorological data, needed by the United States Weather Bureau to make its predictions.

This fact is revealed in a statement from Washington, telling of experiments now being conducted with balloons, without passengers, for securing the desired information. It is pointed out that if these "mechanical scientists" can successfully do the job, the airplane flights, with their attendant toll of death, will be abandoned.

The element of danger to pilots making these flights is chiefly due to the altitude which must be attained, an average of three miles, and that many of the flights must be made in undesirable weather conditions.

The average man, glancing at the weather forecast for the day in his morning newspaper, has little conception of the risk to life and the hardship involved in securing the data on which that forecast is predicated.

There is hope that, if the experimental balloons prove reliable, they will perform the necessary duties even more efficiently than the man-piloted planes. Each balloon not only carries equipment for recording humidity pressure and temperatures, but also has an automatic radio which sends data to the ground weather station. One advantage of the "mechanical scientist" is that it can reach greater altitudes than the airplane. Instead of the three-mile range, the balloons can easily send their data to earth from seven miles. The seven-mile information is badly needed, says Dr. L. F. Curtiss, of the United States Bureau of Standards.

Test flights already made have resulted in radioed reports from the mechanical balloons at a height of 22 miles and a distance of 180 miles from the ground station.

A whiff of a new gas developed by a Swedish engineer will instantly sober a drunk, thereby wiping out the large initial investment.

Editorial of the Day

FOUR LONG YEARS

(From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.)

Certain other nations, complaining of an excess of government, might envy Tibet. The latter, you may recall, is the country of "Lost Horizon," and occasionally is confused with the Pamir Plateau where civilization or the Aryan race, or both, are supposed to have been born. Since some persons contend that the two are synonymous, it is immaterial which came first. The point remains that for four years Tibet has been reversing the usual political order and the government has been seeking the man to run it. This assumes new interest because the second highest official has just died, although he had been an exile for 13 years and so did not count.

The dalai lama died in December of 1933, and a small boy born at the exact moment of his death has been sought as his reincarnation, but for four years the quest has been unavailing. Four years is just the time an American President serves, unless he is re-elected. An American President, though, is not supposed to be a reincarnation of his predecessor, and, in some instances, he is quite the antithesis thereof. Tibet boasts that its history extends through thousands of years, and that every dalai lama succeeds himself. It's a simple system, but we don't know who has been looking after the yaks for the past quadrannium.

A Tract Sold

In Mustard Alley.

Our old friend Charlie Williams, who has been very silent of late, breaks once more into the column today with a quotation from a tract, printed in 1645, and titled "A Hue and Cry After Christmas."

At least, so Charlie says. He also provides information that, according to the title page, said tract was "Printed by Simon Minde Pye for Cissey Pye in Parturidge and are to be sold by Ralph Fidler Chandler at the signe of the Pack of Cards in Mustard Alley in Brawn Street."

Anyway, here is the opening paragraph as transcribed by Charlie:

"Any man or woman who can give any knowledge or tell any tidings of an old, old, very old gray-bearded gentleman, called Christmas, who was wont to be a verie familiar ghest, and visit all sorts of people, both pore and rich, and used to appear in glittering gold, silk, and silver, in the Court, and in all shapes in the Theatre in Whitehall, and had ringing, feasts and jollity in all places, both in the court and country, for his coming; whosoever can tell what is become of him, or where he may be found, let them bring him back againe into England."

Christmas

Pantos.

Every year about this time I begin wondering whether they still produce those delights of my childhood, the Christmas pantomimes of the British theaters?

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"That all should cry, 'Beware, beware,
His flashing eye, his floating hair!
Weave a circle round him thrice,
And close your eyes in holy dread,
For he on honey dew hath fed
And drunk the milk of paradise!"

Anent reference here the other day to the fact that it was Hoover, not Roosevelt, who started the business of having the federal government assume responsibility for economic well-being, Mr. Norman Farrell, Nashville attorney, recalls interestingly that whether it was Hoover or not, it certainly wasn't Grover Cleveland.

"When Mr. Cleveland was President," he remembers, "congress appropriated $10,000 to buy seed for drought-stricken farmers in Texas. Mr. Cleveland, while expressing deep sympathy for the farmers, stated he could find no clause in the federal constitution which gave the federal government the right to appropriate public funds for private relief dissociated from some form of public service, and the doctrine must be scrupulously taught and cultivated at all times that it was the duty of the people to support the government and not the duty of the government to support the people."

"He evidently knew," Mr. Farrell adds, and in so doing bullwarks our own point, "that this course, once embarked upon, would be impossible to stop, and that the best way to stop it was not to start it."

But hasn't it been started, Mr. Farrell? Hasn't it been going on now for at least eight years? As you point out and Walter Lippmann has pointed out also, once a thing like this is begun there is no end to it. Mr. Lippmann, when he made the point some months ago, was of the opinion that voters would go on insisting that the government bring back or maintain economic good times. He implied that, for better or worse, governments which refused to try, which attempted a policy of laissez faire, would always be voted down.

Bigotry knows no Mason-Dixon line, a Mississippi reminds us from Oxford. "Sometimes you seem to overlook the fact that the north is as inclined to it as the south," he writes. "For instance, at the so-called 'joint reunion' at Gettysburg next year the Confederate flag will not be seen because of northern protest. 'We'll be glad to have you,' says the host-to-be, 'but leave your flag at home.' And a short time ago a positive refusal was given the U. D. C. request that the name of Jefferson Davis be placed on the walls of the amphitheater of Arlington cemetery along with the nation's other heroes. The service Jefferson Davis gave the United States before the War Between the States alone warrants the humble and natural request of the U. D. C. But the north has refused to admit this greatness. The point, Mr. Graves, is that the south is no more fanatical than other sections are."

But for those of us who live in and love the south and who hate fanaticism, the job of defeating it in our own section is big enough to leave its defeat in other sections to somebody else, it would seem. The Daughters of the Confederacy and everybody else who cares can serve the south now by discouraging chips on southern England.

Guess I'll have to glance at a few British publications and see what's advertised.

Christmas has never seemed quite exactly Christmas without a pantomime of two to attend.

Of course those shows were not, literally, pantomimes, any more than American burlesque was ever, truly, burlesque.

Pantomime, you know, is, literally, the art of expressing thoughts in gesture, without the use of words.

But the Christmas pantomimes were just glorified revues with the story of some well-known nursery rhyme for plot and with all the new popular songs of the season for music.

The cleverest of the old music hall comedians provided the fun and the shapeliest of soubrettes always filled the lights of the "principal boy."

There was "The Sleeping Beauty," Red Riding Hood, The Three Bears, Jack and the Beanstalk, Cat and the Fiddle, All Baba, and hundreds of others.

Maybe they weren't so great as I remember. But, with the glamor of childhood, memory insists they were the most brilliant, the funniest and most enjoyable shows of all.

Anyway, I wonder if there are any offered in London, Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, Sheffield or any of the other cities of Britain this year.

Or has the Old Country gone completely over to the motion picture and the night-club trade? I hope not, as I hope, someday, to spend another Christmas in Charles Dickens' land.

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Friday, December 13, 1912:

"The recent act of the legislature changing Fulton county officials from a fee to a salary system was declared constitutional and yesterday by Judge John T. Pendleton, of the civil division of the superior court. The case will be appealed at once to the supreme court for final decision."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, December 13, 1887:

"The sixth ward prohibition headquarters has been rented by Mr. Berry to Mr. F. M. Potts, and will be run as a wholesale liquor store."

Shoulders, no matter how many the shoulders of other sections continue to carry.

Once you feed an electorate honey-dew and milk of paradise, in other words, you can never hope to get it back to a less generous diet. Unless, of course, it is seized with so awful an indigestion that its taste for the celestial food-stuffs is destroyed. And in that case it might die.

Questions I've Been Asked.

What is the significance of the four glasses of wine from which each participant drinks at certain times during the passover seder service?

These four cups," says Rabbi William Rosenau, "correspond to the four expressions of redemption used in the Bible, in connection with the story of Israel's liberation. These four expressions are 'I have brought forth,' 'I have redeemed,' 'I have delivered,' 'I have taken.'"

These are found in Exodus 6:6-8 as follows: "When you shall say unto the children of Israel: I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will deliver you from their bondage, and I will redeem you with an outstretched arm, and with great judgments, and I will take you to me for a people."

What is the meaning of the name, David?

It is Hebrew meaning "beloved."

Is it proper to refer to Jews as Hebrews?

Properly used, the word should be applied only to Israelites and Jews before the Babylonian exile which began in 586 B. C. After that, the term "Jew" (from Judah) became the accepted one.

An attractive 195-page autographed gift volume containing 128 of the Talmudic Tales and 500 Pearls of Wisdom may be ordered from The Constitution, $1.50 postpaid.

"Boom Antwerp."

Americans in Antwerp, Belgium, are sometimes puzzled at the sight of large yellow buses bearing the legend "Boom Antwerp." These are not posters for a booster campaign, but indications that the buses will take you to the town of Boom, 12 miles away.

Early Californians.

In 1796, the first vessel from the United States entered a California port. The Otter, from Boston, secretly put in at Monterey, and landed ten Englishmen and one woman stowaway.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Not knowing Walt Disney, I feel free to propose that his countrymen take some means of letting him know that in an era of trouble, worry and meanness he has given the human race more man-hours of pure, innocent joy and escape than anyone else on earth.

His films of "The Three Little Pigs," "The Hare and the Tortoise," and "The Country Mouse," have enabled millions to forget the world briefly in a blessed relaxation of body and spirit.

And the scene in "The Pied Piper," where the little crippled boy straggling behind in sudden panic jerked his body along to enter, in the nick of time, the enchanted land of candy flowers and ice cream trees, where instantly he was made whole and the crutches vanished, was too good to be shown ever before in cans and sealed even in dingy old theaters in revivals. There was panic in the audience, too, for just an instant, although everyone must have felt confident that Disney would not close the mountain and shut out the crippled child, along with all the joyous throng, having once let him glimpse the glories within the gate.

I am almost afraid to propose this tribute to a man who has been a benefactor lest it tempt people to inform me that Walt Disney is not too hot when you give him—that he leans on his nickel tips for footsore waitresses, that he hired members of the AFL, when he should have hired from the CIO and is, therefore, an enemy of labor; that he votes Republican. If such complaints do bring him up, because I figure of three years, this is the prediction made by Emil Ludwig in his new book, "The Life of Roosevelt," which 10 generous installments are appearing in an American magazine. Herr Ludwig is the famous biographer of Napoleon, Wilhelm II, Bismarck and Lincoln, the translator of Roosevelt's "Life" is Maurice Samuel, himself a novelist and essayist of distinction.

Mr. Ludwig dismisses the notion that is sometimes heard about the President having personal dictatorial ambitions. He declares that the Roosevelt administration is perhaps the last attempt to carry out a social revolution without resorting to force. Many will not agree with that, some holding that a social revolution is not desirable at all and others arguing that Mr. Roosevelt's program does not begin to approach revolutionary proportions, but that he is merely a liberal reformer. Whatever the case, certain it is that the tendency of Mr. Roosevelt's policy has been to widen the basis of the democratic system. Marxists would say that this is no revolution at all, because it does not change the ownership of the means of production, which is their criterion of a revolution.

Curious is Mr. Ludwig's condition for a European war. A European war, it is not difficult to see that Mr. Ludwig thinks that war is as good as inevitable. This is the idea generally shared by the anti-Fascist left-wing liberals in Europe with whom Mr. Ludwig is identified as a regular contributor to the Weltbuehne and other anti-Nazi periodicals. In reply they say people hope for it, that is, they hope a European war will take place in the present state of the European alignment. For if such a war broke out at present, or in the immediate future, say within two or three years' time, with German rearmament incomplete and Italy in the penurious economic situation in which she has been maneuvered by Mussolini in making that poor country play the role of a great power, the Soviet Union has a chance of surviving. For it is thought then that England and France will be on her side.

What we know of Hitler's shrewdness and character and the Reichswehr's caution, this is not likely to happen. Germany is not going to run into the same trap as last time, that is, fight the whole world with Italy hanging around her neck like a millstone as the Austro-Hungarian empire was on the last occasion. Herr Ludwig will have to guess again.

The biographer tells something about Mr. Roosevelt's significance for Europe, which is indeed immense. Americans have no idea, generally speaking, what the Roosevelt administration means to France, what an inspiration it has been and still is to the head of the greatest and potentially the most powerful state on earth, should have held high the torch of democracy in a world dist by authoritarianism on the one hand and the right. But let Mr. wig speak.

"Roosevelt's significance," Europeans," he says, "is a than that of any preceding decent except Lincoln and V. This is conditioned more by world situation than by his belief that he holds in his the key to peace. . . . But the great impending European break out during Roosevelt administration, then his aut may be great enough, in the time of danger, to elect him a time. Otherwise, he will end of three years resign the office, though by no means he will.

"It is this activity which plains his essential being, since it is likewise linked to a decisive sense of justice, it to be significant in the history of the world. . . . He is clearly the case with the court, he was wrong as to m. The spirit of our time comp leader to be swift and str action, even where it ent risk, instead of standing hel by."

Methods Held Significant.

"We do not in any way b that he has discovered new what he is doing here in nearly all the European tries. It is how he does it significant for us. That in which he imparted to the co in the time of the crisis do become a loss even if some enactments be repealed.

"Here, from the historic po view, is perhaps the last at to carry out the social revol without resorting to force, sons of those Americans who opposing Roosevelt today will have some day erect a monu to him as the last of those fought to preserve their sy. One thing certain is that the of the poor, for whom he lo the fight, will not forget him, at bottom what is at issue he nothing other than rich and p.

Mr. Ludwig records that F dent Roosevelt was asked wh he was of Jewish origin and plied that he did not think so that he would have not against it so long as his ances were "God-fearing citizens."

No Man Ever Got Ahead

Spending Each Year's Profit As He Made It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

To comprehend a big problem, examine a small one like Dad Ellsworth, having made money as a farmer, decided come a merchant. He built a small wooden store, where two try roads crossed near his house, and stocked it with general chandise. The total investment was something less than two sand dollars.

At the end of the first year he used his profits to build equip a barbecue stand and lunch room and soon thereafter his first helper.

A filling station appeared next, and again it was necessary employ help. Meanwhile the store's business and stock had creased greatly, necessitating the employment of two clerks. Dad couldn't board all of these people, since some of them married, so he began using his profits to build houses. This bringing workmen from town, and the promise of regular persuaded a few of them to remain.

Year by year Dad's enterprise grew and the profits were p back to pay for new departments. The little wooden building way for a brick structure as big as a city block, and the stock included everything from groceries to tractors. There was a smith shop, a garage, an antique shop, a soda fountain, a yard and a meat market, all supplied by a fleet of trucks.

Dad had scores of employees and the houses he had built them had transformed a country road into another Main stre

There, in little, is the story of a great nation and the pi its economic history.

A noted statistician, having completed a study of Ame economy, announces the discovery that our wealth has grow plowing back the profits, and that, as our population grows, na wealth, production, national income and the sum of capital in increase in almost equal ratio.

Each is a spoke in the same wheel, all moving forward a same pace, and if one stops, all must stop. More capital inv means more jobs, which mean more production and more sumpstion, and these mean more profit to plow back to make jobs.

It seems a simple scheme that anybody should understand some of our statesmen think a farmer can prosper without a seed.

THOMAS ANDERSON FUNERAL IS HELD

Was Former Chief of Police at Lithonia.

Funeral services for Thomas E.
Anderson, 80, well-known figure in Decatur and former chief of police at Lithonia, Ga., were held yesterday afternoon in the First Methodist church of Decatur. Officiating ministers were the Rev.
J. W. O. McKibben and Dr. T. E.
McGeachy. Burial was in Decatur
cemetery.

"Uncle Tom" Anderson, as he was known, had been a real estate and livestock trader until recent years when he was confined to a wheel chair. He had since been a bondsman. He died Friday following a paralytic stroke suffered Tuesday.

He was owner of Uncle Tom's swimming pool, on Church street, and had lived in Decatur about 40 years. He resided at 814 Church street.

MAYOR SAYS CITY WILL AID ITS NEEDY

Hartsfield and Preston S.
Arkwright Praise Work of Salvation Army.

Atlanta will care for its needy
this Christmas because the people are essentially generous, Mayor Hartsfield said yesterday in addressing Atlantans who gathered on Peachtree street for the Salvation Army Christmas concert.

"At this time of year, the Christmas season, we appraise the needs not only of ourselves but of those about us," the mayor said. "We take stock of others as well as ourselves and if there is need in Atlanta it is because we are not aware of it."

Work Praised.
Mayor Hartsfield and Preston S.
Arkwright praised the work of the Salvation Army in caring for the needy of the city.

"The Salvation Army's distribution of our gifts duplicates no other agency," Arkwright said.
"The Army remembers those among us whom others forget.
The Salvation Army is thoughtful in its giving."

Children in underprivileged homes are not made to feel that their gifts come from charity and hence lessen in some cases pleasure, Arkwright pointed out.

Job Is Not Too Big.
Brigadier Ernest R. Holz said
"We all like to play Santa Claus in our own families and among our own friends, but did you ever think what it would mean to play
Santa Claus in a really big way—for hundreds and perhaps thousands of families? This is an almost impossible task for one person, but not for the Salvation Army."

Christmas anthems were sung by North Avenue Presbyterian school students. A trombone and accordion duet by Adjutant and Mrs. Frank Long was also presented.

Russian Masses 'Parade to Polls' And Elect Supreme Soviet, Stalin

First Secret, Direct Election in the History of New Republic Brings Out 90,000,000 Qualified Electors; Few Candidates Opposed.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12.—(AP)—With bands playing and red banners flying, the Soviet masses literally paraded to the polls today and elected a supreme Soviet with Joseph Stalin, their undisputed leader, the unanimous choice for one of the seats.

The first secret, direct election in the history of Russia brought out most of the 90,000,000 qualified electors. The voting for 1,143 members of the two-chamber parliament virtually was a ratification of nominations made a month ago. Few candidates were opposed.

Reports from Moscow districts showed that from 85 to 95 per cent of the votes had been cast by 4
p. m., although the polls remained open until midnight.

In one precinct all but 200 of 2,000 qualified electors had voted by mid-afternoon while in another, where Stalin was the unopposed candidate, only 150 of 2,164 had failed to vote.

The election gave impetus to rumors three prominent Soviet officials were in political difficulties, if not more serious trouble.

In addition to the unexplained replacement of Vice Premier Valery
Mezhlauk as a candidate by Ernest Krenkel, radio operator of the Soviet polar camp, two other changes were disclosed today.

General J. I. Alksnis-Astrov,
chief of the air corps, and General
Gustav Bokis, chief of the tank corps, were replaced on the ballot
just before the election. Alksnis-Astrov, who was a member of the court-martial that condemned to death Marshal Mikhail Tukha-chevsky for treason, gave way to Ivan Maslennikov, a frontier guards officer. Bokis was succeeded by Lieutenant Daniel Novitsky, who was born in 1913, the year Bokis joined the Communist party.

As a result of two months' instruction in the method and meaning of the secret ballot, the election went off in an orderly manner.

BLONDE WANTED BY 40 STATES HELD

22-Year-Old Taxi Driver
Quizzed in Forgeries.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—
State and city police today arrested blond Reggie Wells, a 22-year-old taxi driver, as a forger wanted with her husband in nearly 40 states.

Sergeant Glasheen said she and her husband, John Hardy, toured the country for several years, passing worthless checks which usually bore the name of non-existent banks.

A former tap-dancer from Boston, she came here three weeks ago, he said, following the arrest of her husband in Troy, Ala., for a forgery at Mobile. She was arrested with him there, then released.

They are under indictment at Bay Shore, N. Y., and Glasheen said they were wanted in numerous other places, including Waynesboro, Pa., Boston, Chicago,
Detroit, Cincinnati, Camden, and Baltimore.

MAJOR H. H. GORDON LAST RITES TODAY

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn Will Officiate at Services at 10 O'Clock.

Funeral services for Major Hugh Harrison Gordon, 82, Spanish-American War veteran and son of General John B. Gordon, former United States senator and Governor of Georgia, will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. Dr.
Richard Orme Flinn will officiate with burial following in Oakland
cemetery.

Major Gordon, formerly of Kirkwood, near Atlanta, died Saturday at his home in Miami, Fla.,
after a long illness.

The oldest son of General John
B. Gordon, Confederate general,
Major Gordon was born in La-Grange, Ga., and attended the University of Georgia.

With his father, he lived at "Sutherland," his plantation in Kirkwood, until moving to Miami in 1901. In recent years, Major Gordon had spent most of his time traveling in this country and abroad, during the summer, then returning to his plantation near Albany, Ga., or his fruit farm near Miami, in the winter.

Concert Is Halted By Angered Maestro

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—(AP)—
Angered by latecomers, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, halted a concert before a capacity audience of 3,600 at Syria Mosque today.

He strode from the music hall and refused to return for five minutes.

As he left, the famous maestro blazed out at an attendant:
"I will not go back there, never-er! The fools—better they should stay home in bed. They should have some respect for the art."

Earlier in the concert, while the orchestra was well into the first movement of Mozart's symphony in A major, he had laid down his baton, and shouted clipped instructions that no one was to enter after the music had begun.

A few moments later, two spectators brushed by ushers, walked down an aisle.

The conductor slammed his baton on the music stand, and strode from the stage.

Koussevitzky returned after a five-minute interval.

AUBURN TO OPEN PRACTICE TODAY FOR JAN. 1 CLASH

Survivors of 'Suicide' Schedule Play Michigan State in Orange Bowl.

AUBURN, Ala., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Auburn's Orange Bowl-bound Plainsmen, who finished third within the Southeastern conference on a "suicide schedule," will begin preparations tomorrow for their Michigan State New Year's Day encounter.

The Plainsmen marked time, more or less, from the time of the Orange Bowl bid until Southeastern conference approval was given for acceptance. Coach Jack Meagher was due back tomorrow from the conference meeting at Jackson, Miss.

Last New Year's Day the Plainsmen fought Villanova, with whom they played a scoreless deadlock this season, to a 7-7 draw in Havana's Rumbia Bowl.

PREP GRID STAR WILL STAY SILENT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 12.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" De Correvont, nursing a fractured collarbone, told reporters in his hotel room tonight he will not appear on Robert L. Ripley's "Believe-It-or-Not" program Saturday night to name the college he will attend.

"I've changed my mind," the sensational Austin High (Chicago) basketball star, said.

"I am supposed to announce the college I will attend after graduation from high school. But I'm not prepared to do that, so I'm not going."

De Correvont played for most of two periods in a game here Saturday with the Jackson (Tenn.) Golden Bears. Austin won, 13-0, with De Correvont scoring the first touchdown on a 37-yard gallop.

He suffered the shoulder injury in a pile-up midway of the second period and did not re-enter the game.

The blond-haired youth said he would return to Chicago tomorrow morning with his teammates.

WARREN MEETS COLUMBUS FIVE

Warren quintet opens a six-day road trip tonight with a game with the Nehi Reds in Columbus.

Tuesday night they play the Columbus Manufacturing Company in Columbus; Wednesday night the Albany Blues in Albany; Thursday night the Jewish Educational Alliance of Savannah; Friday night the Medicos in Savannah and their final game of the trip with the Griffin Athletic Club Saturday night.

Warren has played and won five games so far, all by large margins.

ARMSTRONG WINS.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong, world featherweight champion, knocked out Johnny Jones, of Pittsburgh, here today after one minute and 20 seconds of the second round in a scheduled 10-round fight.

A GUEST COLUMN

Elmer G. Salter

Editor's Note: Today's guest column is written by Elmer G. Salter, publicity director at Auburn.

Before Brother McGill sailed for a six months' tour of Europe, he asked me to be a guest columnist for him one day and write about old Auburn stories or incidents. It is quite an honor to pinch-hit for Brother McGill. My lone hope is that his perennially interesting column does not lose any readers by an Auburnite filling in for one morning.

My tour of athletic service at Auburn did not begin until 1928, so I have had to call upon several of my friends among the "old-timers" to come to my aid in being a pinch-batsman for Brother McGill, Georgia's football and wrestling czar. And also I am quite sure that no one cares to be reminded of the days around 1928 through 1930 that the Tigers were fortunate to score on the gridiron, let alone win a game.

I, for one, would like to forget the football seasons of 1928 and 1929 and also one while I was a student at the Plains in 1927. Auburn did not even come close to finishing with a percentage of 1.000 in 1930, but that season marked the beginning of Auburn's modern football renaissance under Coach Chet Wynne that has been continued under the present Plainsmen grid chieftain and athletic director, Jack Meagher. Also in 1930 we won our first conference game in 31 tries. Hope we never have to wait that long again. Honestly, a lot of water went over the dam between Auburn's 9-0 win over Sewanee in 1926 and the 25-7 victory over South Carolina in Columbus, Ga., in the final clash in 1930.

COACH TELLS 'EM.

Why one year the head coach even told his boys that if they did not whip a minor non-league foe the coming Saturday that they would not receive letters that season. This ultimatum must have brought results because they went out and won, 25-6, for their only win of the season. And "A's" were awarded.

In being able to pinch-hit for Brother McGill, whom I know could bat for me in the ninth inning with the bases loaded and two out and do a much better job, I wish to express my appreciation to Dr. George Petrie, Auburn's first football coach and the present dean of the graduate school and head of the history department of Auburn; Dr. J. V. Brown, captain of Auburn's second football club, who is now director of the plant service department at Auburn; Dean C. L. Hare, of the Auburn school of chemistry and pharmacy and president of the old Southern conference in 1931; Homer Wright, Auburn druggist and postmaster and one of the most loyal alumni ever to leave the school's halls, and Coach Wilbur Hutsell, who has been the Tigers' track and field mentor since 1920 and has been the school's football trainer under seven coaching regimes.

MANY STORIES.

There are plenty of stories connected with a school that inaugurated football as an intercollegiate sport 45 years ago and has won 192 decisions against 123 losses and 25 ties and has scored 5,476 points against 2,725 for the opposition. But I will not try and relate all of them. My mission is to try and relate some of the most interesting as told by my friends, to whom I am deeply indebted.

And here they are:

The first golf course in Auburn was planned by Professor Hare and Dr. Charles Ross, the then head of Auburn's modern language department. Auburn now has one of the finest courses in the state for a city its size—but the holes on Auburn's first golf links in O'Hara hollow were tomato cans.

The big caboose yell originated in the early nineties because Auburn's football team was transported to Montgomery to play Sewanee in a caboose. The regular train was late and the Auburn officials did not want to be late for the game in the Capital City, so they arranged with the railroad moguls to transport the team on a special train—an engine and a caboose. Auburn's followers and players were yelling, "Here we come in a big caboose" as soon as they arrived in the cradle of the Confederacy.

To run Auburn's early football teams, it also took a comparatively large amount of money and the greenbacks to finance.

MAX SCHMELING IN TEST TONIGHT AGAINST THOMAS

German Fighter Meets No Pushover in 15-Rounder in Garden.

By EDDIE BRIETZ.
NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Herr Max Schmeling, the man who showed them Joe Louis could be whipped, returns to the boxing ring tomorrow night in a 15-round engagement with Harry Thomas, hard-hitting Chicago heavy, in Madison Square Garden.

For Schmeling this is merely the first of several warm-up bouts to gear him up for a June title struggle with Louis, whom Max kayoed last year, but it may prove a stiffer test than a lot of people (Schmeling included) figure. Thomas is not the best heavy-weight in the world, but neither is he anybody's pushover.

He is a rugged young man who has won 51 of his 56 professional fights. Most of them were against second and third raters but Harry won 43 of them via the knockout route. He has never been knocked down, much less knocked out. He is dead game and socks hard with either fist.

Although Thomas has been the recipient of the most elaborate build-up given a fighter in recent years, not many rate him better than an outside chance to trim Max and upset the fistic apple cart. Most fight men agree the westerner will have to be mighty lucky to win. There is always a possibility he may find a vulnerable spot with his Sunday punch, but it is hardly more than that.

MAX STARTS SLOW.
Schmeling is a notoriously slow starter. Usually he requires five or six rounds to warm up. If he can escape Thomas's right—his favorite weapon—that long, the consensus here is Max can go on to win pretty much as he pleases.

If "Der Schlager" has his way, there'll be no speedy knockout. Max needs work. He feels he must have two or three fairly stiff jousts under his belt to be at his best for Louis in June and tomorrow night's fight is just a part of that program.

"I'll knock him out," predicted Schmeling, "but I want eight or nine rounds of hard work before I do it. I will not cut loose in the second or third round unless I find the fellow is much tougher than I think he is. It will do me no good to go in there for three or four rounds."

Odds on the German rose from 2 to 1 to 3 to 1 today with the likelihood they may be even higher when the boys climb into the ring at approximately 10 p. m. (E. S. T.) Little or no betting is reported.

SEES $75,000 GATE.
Cheered by yesterday's ticket sale, Promoter Jacobs continued to insist the fight will gross $75,000, with between 15,000 and 17,000 customers in the stands. Champion Joe Louis got in today and will be at the ringside.

The fighters are ready. Thomas has put in three weeks of hard work at Pompton Lakes, N. J., while Schmeling, N. J., Schmeling has drilled himself into what his handlers say is the best shape of his 13-year ring career. Max says he worked just as hard for Thomas as he did for his all-important test with Louis 18 months ago.

Weighing in ceremonies will be held in the Garden at noon tomorrow. The bout will be broadcast over NBC at 9:15 p. m., Atlanta time, tomorrow.

ALMAND MEETS LOPEZ TONIGHT

Son Almand, the former Atlantic Steel worker, has been assigned a real task at the Spring Street arena tonight. The promoter has him matched against Raoul Lopez, rough Mexican.

Albert (Red) Cameron, of Herkimer, has hired a lawyer and set out to prove that he has a valid contract executed in 1930 and signed by Lou and his late father.

Cameron exhibited the paper today and pointed to a provision that Ambers agreed to pay one-third of his ring earnings for the next 10 years. It was witnessed by Police Judge Frank E. Munson, of Herkimer.

Ambers, here to visit his family over the holidays, said Charles Goldman, of New York city, was his manager and had been for a couple of months.

a newcomer here, Jim Demos, Greek, from Detroit. Gentleman John Mauldin will referee all bouts.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The Greenville News said tonight that Harry Mehre, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of Georgia, would appear in Columbia tomorrow before a special committee appointed to investigate the coaching situation at the University of South Carolina.

The newspaper said the university board of trustees with full power to act on the committee's recommendation, would meet an hour later.

Dempsey Thinks Thomas Has Chance Tonight

Jack Dempsey, former world's champion, is shown here as he looked over Harry Thomas at his Pompton Lakes, N. J., training camp. Dempsey thinks the young heavyweight has an outside chance against Max Schmeling, conqueror of Joe Louis, in their Madison Square Garden fight tonight. However, the German is a 2-1 choice.

FOURSOME WINS WITH 117 SCORE

Eleven foursomes participated in the weekly dogfite tournament Sunday afternoon on the East Lake course. The winning foursome had a score of 117. They were Pete Barnes, L. W. Masten, Elgin Poole and G. T. Freeman.

Second with a score of 118 were K. A. Stephenson, H. P. Bond, C. R. Stanley and J. C. Shumate. Jack Robinson, R. P. Frazier, H. L. Ralls and J. J. Loneragan turned in a score of 119.

Next at 120 were Dr. H. P. McDonald, Dr. Ballenger, J. S. Blick and Jesse Draper.

Last with a score of 121 were George Elliott, H. S. Roberts, L. S. Meng and S. M. Haw.

Six Players Tie In Ansley Bogey.
Six players tied for first place in the Ansley Park blind bogey Sunday afternoon. The winning number was 75 and five players tied for it. They were R. L. Dodd, Doll Ballard, E. B. Adams, Carl Shupshire and J. O. Lewin Jr.

Carroll Latimer, C. L. R. Nichols and A. O. Mitchell had a score of 78.

Carl Dannals Jr. turned in the lowest score of the day, a 69.

There was a report making the rounds in Athens last night that Purdue and not Michigan is the Big Ten school which has offered Harry Mehre the job of head football coach. Noble Kizer, the Bollweavers' leader, has been ill this year.

a conference relative to a new coaching job. Mehre is not going to drop out of the coaching game, he definitely has said.

He turned down two very flattering propositions to go into business.

He is interested in the Michigan job and another at Virginia, among others.

"I'm not sure what league I want to get into," Mehre has said. "Firemen can't hit curve balls. There's one league I have in mind where I wouldn't have to get an occasional bowl bid, either, because post-season games are banned."

NOT ABOUT FOOTBALL.
When Mehre departed from Miami, he made one significant statement, but it wasn't about football.

"I have talked it over with Horton Smith," he said, "and he is going to win this rich Miami Biltmore golf tournament. No, he didn't tell me he was, but I just have a hunch he'll be the one to beat."

Sanford Isn't Tide's Entire Football Team
The impression has been gained, somehow, that Sanford is Alabama's chief threat and, otherwise, it is just a fair football club.

This isn't true, of course, and California, which may have a similar idea, will learn something to the contrary on New Year's Day at Pasadena.

To close observers one of the pertinent features of the current eleven coached by Frank Thomas is its blocking. The Tidesmen are a devastating blocking team.

Joe Kilgore, Charley Holm, Vic Bradford, Zivich, Cochran, Moseley and one or two others give the Tide's strong group of backs, and the line is plenty strong enough. The fact that Captain Leroy Monsky will have time to allow his injured ankle to heal before the Rose Bowl game adds

$300,000 Gate Set For Bowl Game

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 12.—(AP)—They're predicting $300,000 gate at the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. Ticket applications for the football game between Alabama and California indicate 200,000 persons want to crowd into the Bowl, which sea only 88,000.

The gate receipts will be the second largest in Tournament of Roses history. The Universities of California at Alabama will get more the two-thirds of the money.

Pittsburgh and Southern California hold the Rose Bowl record for gate receipts $306,421.15 in 1930. Record show that in the last 11 years the average attendance has been 65,695; the average gate $232,293.50; the average ticket price $3.50.

THREE IN PLANE HURT AS IT DROPS 1,000 FEET

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 12. (AP)—Three persons were injured today when an airplane plunged to the ground from an altitude of approximately 1,000 feet.

Clarence Meriwether, pilot and co-owner of the ship, and his companions, Bill Jobe, 23, and Mary Louise Miller, 23, all of Clarksville, suffered serious leg fractures and bruises.

Meriwether said the plane, over the Clarksville airport, went into a tailspin when he attempted to bank. The ship was demolished.

MILITIA THWARTS ESCAPE ATTEMPT IN SOUTH CAROLINA

got a gun in my ribs and want a car to get out."

Christmus said he called Colonel J. S. Wilson, prison superintendent, to find out what to do.

Colonel Wilson immediately phoned the Governor, who hurried to the prison and pleaded at length with the convicts.

J. Henry James, member of the state constabulary, said the convicts promised to take Sanders with them unharmed if they were given a car and the gates were opened.

Officers agreed that any course taken would have resulted in the death of Sanders, who had a standing order for his guards that if such a predicament ever arose they should refuse to carry out the prisoners' demands.

"If they had let them take a car, the prisoners would have killed Sanders later and dumped his body out on the highway somewhere," said Roy Powell, secretary to the Governor.

Governor Johnston said he was only a short distance from the barricaded prisoners and could see them as he pleaded with them to give up.

"When I walked up, I had my hands in my overcoat pockets," he said, "and one of the men said in a very rough voice:

"Take your hands out of your pockets, there."

The Governor complied as he went on with his exhortation.

Sergeant T. R. Wright said the attempted break came shortly after 8:30 a. m.

"It was right after roll call, Captain Sanders must have had his door unlocked when the prisoners walked in and seized him. As a usual thing he doesn't keep his office locked when he is in."

"I had started to the cell block and Corporal Christmus met me and said, 'Come on back here and get your gun. A bunch of prisoners have got the captain in his office.'"

"I started out and Christmus told me not to go out there,

"they'll shoot you." By that time, the alarm was out and state, city and county police were pouring in.

"The prisoners must have known they were licked. But they wouldn't give in until the guardsmen arrived and let them have a cloud of tear-gas."

Coroner John A. Sergeant said examination showed Sanders was stabbed with an ice-pick or "an instrument sharpened like an ice-pick."

Dr. L. H. Jennings, prison physician, said none of the prisoners was badly injured although all were suffering from the tear-gas and several were struck on the head "with billets."

Sanders, a native of Anderson, had been captain of the guard since 1927.

The six convicts were listed as Herman Mooreman, 41, of Detroit, Mich.; J. V. Blair, 27, of Sumter, S. C.; William B. Woods, 24, of Biloxi, Miss.; Roy Suttles, 28, of Simpsonville, S. C.; Clayton Grans, 28, of Rochester, N. Y., and George Wingard, 22, of Columbia, South Carolina.

Another Plot.

Prison officials said there was no "trouble" at the prison to prompt such a desperate bid for freedom and that it was merely another escape plot—defeated by Captain Sanders' own heroic order against yielding to would-be escapers' demands with a hostage in their power.

The six prisoners, including one who escaped from the Florence county jail October 8, and another who attempted to break from the state penitentiary last January 7, are serving terms ranging from 18 months to 17 years.

Blair, alias Jesse Williams, was sentenced to 10 years for bank robbery at Elmore, S. C., he escaped from the Florence county jail, but was recaptured a month later at New Braunfels, Texas.

Records of the others included: Woods, 10-year sentence for highway robbery and larceny, attempted break through state penitentiary laundry door last January; Suttles, 17 years for highway robbery, larceny, assault and battery with intent to kill, carrying concealed weapons; Grans, two years for house-breaking; Mooreman, 10 years for highway robbery, and Wingard, 18 months for house-breaking and larceny.

2 GO ON TRIAL TODAY IN SEDER KIDNAP CASE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 12.—(AP)—John Travis, 25, and Orville Adkins, 24, will go on trial tomorrow for the kidnaping of Dr.

James I. Seder, a crime for which Arnett A. Booth, 46-year-old pardoned convict, already has been convicted.

Travis and Adkins are accused of being accomplices of Booth in the abduction and resulting death of the aged dry leader and former missionary.

Prosecuting Attorney E. E. Winters Jr. said he was prepared to demand the death penalty for both.

Captain Olin Sanders, fatally stabbed by six desperadoes in an abortive escape attempt, is shown on a stretcher from the office of the South Carolina state penitentiary. He died a few minutes after this picture was taken.

CROWDS RIOT AS DELBOS ARRIVES AT BELGRADE

BELGRADE, Dec. 12.—(UP)—Rioting broke out today as police charged several thousand student demonstrators who gathered at the railroad station to cheer Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, and denounce Italian and Fascist sympathizers.

Police charged the mob with drawn guns and clubs, beating them back and arresting scores.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (Friday)—A very appealing letter has come to me from a woman who describes her boy's efforts to find a job. I am going to tell the story here because I think more of us need to understand it so that we may be helpful when we come in contact with a similar circumstance.

When a sophomore in college, this boy had meningitis, which left him completely deaf. A year later he went back to college and completed his course. He took lip reading and became very good at it. He studied bookkeeping and business methods and felt here was a field where his deafness would not handicap him. But when he went searching for a job, nobody wanted him. Then he turned to commercial art work, won a scholarship at the art institute and obtained a summer position, but again nothing permanent came his way.

In some state and federal government positions, there is a rule that a certain definite percentage of handicapped people must be employed. I know that this is the rule also in certain big business organizations. The heads of these organizations tell me that, almost invariably, the blind, the deaf and the maimed do their jobs well. Perhaps they concentrate more easily because of their handicaps, and the training which they have to undergo in order to overcome them is good discipline.

We cannot take care of all these handicapped employables unless it becomes a universal practice to devote certain positions, which they can fill, exclusively to them. This may mean a study of the industry in order to make the adjustments necessary. Like so many other things in life, with goodwill it can be done, and I hope it will be done.

I went to the broadcasting station straight from the dinner table last night. After my conversation with Kate Smith, I returned to find the rest of the family still conversing over their coffee, so Mrs. Schneider and I had our coffee and desert, which we had expected to sacrifice on the altar of radio punctuality.

It is funny how you instinctively like certain people. I have met Kate Smith once, I think, but I have a feeling that if I knew her better, I would like her. I hope the opportunity for a better acquaintance than a radio connection will come to me before long.

I worked all evening and at midnight was back at the radio station to repeat the program for the west coast, which made the day seem quite long.

We have been rehearsing our skit for tomorrow night's Gridiron Widows' party. It always amuses me to find how awkward one feels until one gets scenery and costumes, then it is quite easy to pretend.

Your Waistline, Sir!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DEFICIENCY OF VITAMIN B CAUSE OF NEURITIS.

Any alcoholic patient will tell you that the most serious and painful after-effect of over-indulgence is not the jitters but neuritis. Doctors at Bellevue hospital's alcoholic ward—probably the world's leading authorities on the treatment of alcoholism—know that neuritis is produced by the failure to eat properly and that this condition can be prevented by the simple expedient of taking one milligram of Vitamin B1 for every 3,000 calories consumed.

Since from 50 to 60 per cent of the patients treated for alcoholism have neuritis, this new use for Vitamin B1 is of great interest. Dr. Norman Jolliffe, of Bellevue hospital, believes that additional Vitamin B1 would not be required where a balanced diet is followed, for this vitamin is liberally supplied in whole wheat bread, fruits and vegetables. The trouble is that while drinking the average person does not adhere to a balanced diet.

To assure an adequate intake of Vitamin B1, the average man who takes 3,000 calories in food and drink would use one milligram daily of Vitamin B1. On a higher calorie intake, the amount of the vitamin would be increased. In estimating the daily calorie intake, the liquor calories are included. Roughly, one ounce of whiskey contains 100 calories. One ounce of 80 proof contains about 84 calories, an ounce of 90 proof about 94 calories and one ounce of 100 proof about 105 calories.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I cannot believe anything but that I am a victim of a strange fatality and please tell me if you agree. I have been brought up in a very religious home where the church was the center of our existence. I am in love with a man who is beneath me socially, morally and intellectually. He drinks, gambles, uses profane language and never saves a cent. Time and again I have promised my family I would quit him but when he comes and tells me how much he cares for me, I weaken and go right on as I have been going. Nobody has a good word to say for him and my friends think it is perfectly terrible for me to associate with him. I begin to feel the difference in every one of them toward me because of course I must deceive them as well as my family about dating him. It is making a horrible hypocrite out of me. But how can a girl part from a man she loves better than her life? I didn't want to fall in love with this sort of person. I don't want to hurt my family. I know what they say is true, that I will probably be miserably married to him—yet I can't say the word that separates him from me for life.

PERPLEXED.

Answer: My dear girl: God gave you a brain as well as an emotional nature, and if you don't use your brain in choosing your life mate you can't ascribe your subsequent misery to fate. Some sage has said that our fate is the sum-total of our decisions as we go along through life. According to this we are all victims of a strange fatality—but we make that strange fatality ourselves.

Then use your brain in this decision; figure on the consequences of marriage to man without character, without stability, a habit-ridden, rambling wreck. Fate may have thrown you with him, propinquity awakened your love for him but the facts as you see them and state them should stop you dead in your tracks and make it comparatively easy for you to say goodbye to him.

Love, you see, is something more than riotous emotion. Excitement, Love is the best we have going out to another; so any girl stultifies herself by believing in the love of a man who says he loves her, yet makes no effort to rise above his vices and weaknesses. Of course his love is no better than his: he won't make him over. But even a sorry man, who touched by the divine spark, puts up a fight to correct the traits that cause his girl mental anguish. Although he may be weak and unable to pull himself up out of the pit, he keeps struggling.

Of course it frequently happens that parents in their zeal to see their daughter make a fine match, set their stakes so high no mortal man can come up to them but this is not the case with you. When family, friends and acquaintances turn thumbs down on a girl's suitor, she's obliged to know they can't all be wrong. And when she admits he has no habits but bad ones, is a different breed from herself and that she foresees misery should she marry him, why in heaven's name can't she get up the courage to say the separating word? How much better to say it before the ceremony than afterward?

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Beauty According to You

BY LILLIAN MAE (Posed by Sally Blane)

A-shopping I just must go these days, and then when I find so many attractive, gifty things, I become so imbued with the spirit of Christmas that I feel I must spread the glad tidings.

Today I have for you a wide range of items and prices. Surely something in this column will help you with your gift list.

1. There is a most delightful eau de cologne in rose-geranium odor, in a deep pink corrugated-looking bottle, encased in a satiny white box with the trade name in gold script. This delightful fragrance just floats out even before the bottle is opened. A companion to the cologne is a matching dusting powder in a cylindrical white box, pink-striped, and lettered in silver. A lovely gift together for $2.00, or separately, each item, at half that price. There are several different floral odors, but I just love the rose-geranium.

2. Any woman's luxury-loving soul will delight in another special gift package of marvelous color, glittering in its gay dimpled bottle, together with a body sachet in a tall, shining cylinder. This cologne is a delightful after-the-bath cocktail for the body, and the body sachet is a well of dainty loveliness. It clings indefinitely, and as contact warms the velvety powder, its haunting fragrance lends subtle, lasting charm. This set costs only $2.50.

3. Another firm seems to have outdone itself this year with a gift that really speaks Christmas—a shining, golden, perfumed jingle bell that rings out holiday cheer! The be-ribboned and holly-leaved bell rings out happily as you lift it from the red-lacquered base that holds three little crowns of scent; for your fresh, outdoor mood, for brilliant afternoons, and for the sparkling hours after dark. This is an adequate choice for any lady, she the giver can't go wrong. Can't you see how gay these bells would be hanging from the Christmas tree, and with what fun to ring in the New Year? They are $3.75 each.

4. A fascinating collection of bath accessories includes a jar of pebble type bath salts, a box of dusting powder and a chubby round cake of bath soap. You'll find the bath salts lightly scented with the popular rose-geranium, bracing Russian pine, unusual All-america, or old-fashioned delicate lilac. This for only $5.

5. There's a leather make-up kit which comes in black or colors—kit for the true sophisticate. With its top strap handle it bears every resemblance to a handbag. The contents in black bottles and jars with white tops, consists of a wind and weather lotion, skin tonic, emulsified cleansing cream, foundation cream, rouge, powder and lipstick. A splendid mirror forms the inside top. This lovely kit is priced at $5.

6. One other delightful item. A very new compact, by an exclusive French perfumer. It is in the new metal finish, with no enamel to scratch or chip. It slips into the hand smoothly and comfortably, offering far more capacity than its outward dimensions would lead you to expect. The rounded corners protect your bag. The powder and rouge compartments are fitted with quick, responsive catches that yield instantly and never mar the finger nails. These compact comes in single, double and triple styles, at $8, $10 and $12, in interesting variations of gold and platinum plating, and may be engraved. Refills are available.

I'll be glad to give you further information as to names, prices and stores at which the above items may be purchased, if you will phone me at my office in The Constitution building. If you do not live in Atlanta, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Golden Wedding.

WAXCROSS, Ga., Dec. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Murray celebrated their golden wedding anniversary December 7 at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Anderson. Present were their nine children, Mesdames J. J. Bennett and J. F. Anderson, of Waycross; M. C. Johnson, of Douglas; Clifford Adams, of Fitzgerald; and W. O. Murray, of Waycross; Earl B. Murray, of Jacksonville, and Harry H. Murray, of Bunnell, Fla.

Fifteen of their 17 grandchildren were present and their one great-grandchild, Murray Anderson Jr. Mrs. Murray, the former Mary Eugene Harbin, was the daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Harbin, of Waycross.

Birthday Celebration.

Mrs. Charles Lambert entertained at her home on Waddell street Saturday afternoon, honoring little Leonor McElendon on her 11th birthday. Games and contests were enjoyed, and the honor guest was presented with gifts. A pink and white color combination party was carried out in the decorations and refreshments.

Miss Elizabeth Hargrove assisted Mrs. Lambert in entertaining. Guests included Anne Hayes, Cherie Kimberly, Shirley Johnson, Roselyn Johnson, Betty McGinnis, Dorris Whitten, Marilyn Connel, Leonard McElendon, C. E. Floyd, Mrs. W. I. Johnson, Mrs. J. M. Holmes and Mrs. W. F. Lambert.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT THE FLU

At present the pathologists and research investigators seem to favor the conclusion that influenza, at any rate the malady that attacked 500,000,000 people and cost perhaps 15,000,000 lives in 1918 (in many parts of the world) is a "virus disease." By that they mean that the spread of the disease is due to the passage of a virus from one person to another (just how the virus spreads they do not all agree) and not by a germ. At least no specific germ or bacterium has been proved responsible for influenza. That a virus is concerned is proved by the fact that it infects ferrets and mice, when inoculated, producing characteristic diseases in both species.

It is my firm belief that the practice of taking an alleged "cold cure" at the first indication of oncoming "grip" or "flu" is a common predisposing factor of influenza. Especially if the medicine contains acetanilide or phenacetin or aspirin or antipyrin. It is my belief that resort to such drugs gravely interferes with whatever natural immunity-developing capacity the individual may have, no matter whether the infection is influenza or pneumonia.

For myself, I'd prefer to rely on the prophylactic use of quinine, as described by Dr. A. H. Dodd in British Medical Journal. He himself was particularly sensitive and had been a frequent victim during the earlier epidemics of influenza. On advice of an elder colleague he tried quinine; at the slightest hint of a return of an epidemic, and always in late autumn, he took one or two grains of quinine sulphate in sugar-coated pills or uncoated tablets the first thing every morning, with a tumbler of hot water. After he adopted this practice he went eight years without another attack; then had a slight one, and after that five years' freedom. He usually continues taking quinine as described for four to five months in the year.

In a school, at his direction, the school head gave two grains of quinine to every pupil every morning, and not a single case of influenza occurred in the school during the most severe epidemic.

I'd take two grains of quinine three times a day, as a prophylactic against influenza.

Another Big Brother broadcast will go over the air waves tonight at 8:05 o'clock, with an entertaining program filled with Atlanta's foremost talent. Faber Bollinger, program director, announced. It will be sponsored by Major Floyd Johnston and his gang from East Atlanta.

Further evidence of Big Brother's enthusiasm is shown in Buckhead. E. D. McDougald, commander of Buckhead Post No. 140, has called a meeting for 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Colonial Terrace hotel, on Peachtree road. All Big Brothers in and around Buckhead are invited.

"It's this spirit," said Chairman Belle Isle, "that's going to make this fifth annual drive the greatest we've had. Those untalented children of needy families will wake Christmas morning to a full stocking if it is kept by Big Brothers."

The fifth annual charity will be held Wednesday night, December 22, in the St. Moses church. A slide show orchestra will furnish the music.

Tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock the Harold Byrd Post No. 140, American Legion, will be holding all Big Brothers in Decatur. The meeting will be in Candler's hall. Those wishing to attend are to make reservations with non Frank, chairman of Decatur Big Brothers.

Victim of Crash Will Be Buried in Oakland Cemetery.

Funeral services for Harry Hightower Fleming, 15-year-old son of Frank L. Fleming, Atlanta businessman, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Spring Hill. Dr. William V. Gardner will officiate and burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Young Fleming was killed instantly Friday night on "dead man's curve," at the intersection of Peachtree road and Andrew's drive, when his bicycle collided with an automobile. The car was driven by E. S. Dixon, negro chauffeur, who is being held on a charge of manslaughter, without bond. The boy lived with his parents at 2892 Peachtree road.

ROBERT JOHNSON FUNERAL IS HELD

Worked From Office Boy to Coal Presidency.

Funeral services for Robert R. Johnson, 53, president of the Campbell Coal Company, were held yesterday afternoon at Spring Hill with Dr. Arthur T. Allen officiating. Burial was in West View cemetery.

Mr. Johnson died Friday night of a heart ailment at his home, 2086 East Lake road, N. E. He had been in ill health for several years.

He was a leader in the Jackson Hill Baptist church, sponsoring the erection of the $85,000 building on Walton street occupied by the University System of Georgia Evening school. He was born in Eatonton, Ga.

His career with the coal firm began when he was given a job as office boy, more than 40 years ago. Mr. Johnson became president about 10 years ago.

Murder Villa Yields Clothes of Police To Spade Grounds for Bo

Syndicate Chief 'Going To Pieces' in Cell Occupied by Bluebeard.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—(P)—Police disclosed today they had discovered the clothes of 12 different women in the St. Cloud death villa where Eugene Weidmann killed at least two of his five confessed victims.

The only one of the 12 identified, 30-year-old Janine Keller, was feared to have been the sixth prey of Weidmann, admitted executioner of a murder-for-profit syndicate which may have slain 10 or more persons.

Weidmann, however, refused to answer detectives' insistent questions.

"I will tell more when the time comes," he explained calmly.

A photograph found in the isolated villa was identified by Eugene Keller, of Strasbourg, as one of his estranged wife, who went to Paris October 2 and has not been heard of since.

Authorities announced "every inch" of the wooded grounds about the villa would be spaded up on the possibility that Mrs. Keller's body had been buried there.

The strangled body of 22-year-old Jean de Koven, Brooklyn, N. Y., dancer, was found under the villa porch and that of Fritz Frommer, once a member of the syndicate, in the basement.

Roger Millon, described by police as head of the murder ring, was said to have gone completely to pieces in his cell. Guards said he frequently broke down in fits of hysterical weeping, moaning: "I've done nothing... nothing."

Mr. and Mrs. White Will Be Hosts at Christmas Reunion in Athens

By Sally Forth.

THE beautiful home of Elizabeth and Jim White Jr., on Prince avenue, in Athens, will provide the setting for the Christmas reunion of Mrs. William F. Spalding's family. Mrs. Spalding will motor to Athens on December 24 to meet her daughter and son, Anne and Fred Spalding, who will come down from New York to spend the holidays in Athens and Atlanta. The trio will be week-end guests of the Whites, who will accompany their mother and Anne and Will to Atlanta on December 26 to spend the year's final week end here.

On Christmas Eve Elizabeth and Jim will entertain at a family Christmas dinner and on Christmas Day the visitors will be prominent figures attending the formal "egg-nogs" for which the Whites are famous.

Mrs. Frederick Rahr, of New York, the former Julia Bradshaw, another former Georgian, is in New York, who will spend the Christmas holidays in Athens. Julia and her children, Anne and Fred Jr., will be guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bradshaw, in Athens, who will share honors with the White family at the Yuletide parties.

Julia and Anne Spalding are long friends and since fate decreed that they reside in New York, the pair see each other frequently in the metropolis and many happy hours chat about Georgia and their friends here.

Sally is certain that before returning east Julia will visit Atlanta and attend parties galore at which Anne and Will Spalding will be central figures.

YOUNG Atlanta swain, who had been seeing quite a lot of a debutante of several seasons, recently began to show interest in this year's club belles and perhaps still more a few of those attractive subjects who are attending so many of this season's debut parties. In compliment to them, he remarked that he believed he would take a week off and swap in his old on a 1938 model.

Marshall, leader; Warchawaw group, of Savannah, Mrs. M. Malone, leader; and Ehawee group, Miss Dorthea Blackshear, leader, all three groups from Several groups are in the process of organization and they attend as guests of the council. The leaders of the groups are: Mrs. Frank Manning, Mrs. J. L. Skinner, Mrs. E. D. Finch, Misses Maude Jackson and Dorothy Farris, Mrs. Luther Allen, Mrs. Barksdale, Mrs. Ben Askew and Mrs. Albert Jenkins.

On Saturday, at 8:45 o'clock, a doll breakfast will be held at S. & W. cafeteria, to which Camp Fire Girls and their leaders are urged to attend and bring dressed dolls to give through the Christmas Giving committee.

The "Charm school" will not meet on December 18, but will attend the breakfast with the other members of the organization at 10 o'clock, with the subject "Ornaments and Jewelry," presented by Miss Dorothy Blackshear, Mrs. Emmett R. Rushin and Miss Ruth Grover.

The formal call to the fifteenth triennial convention of the National Council of Jewish Women, to be held January 23-28 in Pittsburgh, Pa., is issued by Mrs. Arthur Brin, of Minneapolis, national president, to the 40,000 members.

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, honorary president, opens the call with a message in commemoration of the forty-fifth anniversary of the organization which she founded in 1893.

The Atlanta section, founded in 1895 by Rabbi David Marx, has selected as delegates to this triennial Madames Herman Heyman, Donald Oberdorfer and Morris Hirsch, with Madames Phillip Phillips, S. R. Greenblatt and Ralph Uhry as alternates.

The tentative program centers around the theme, "Toward an integrated Jewish Womanhood." Peace legislation and interpretation of council work will be the subject of three round tables on the opening day of the conference.

Honorable James L. Houghteling, recently appointed United States commissioner of immigration and naturalization service, will be one of the chief speakers at the banquet. The dramatic features of the immigration and citizenship work, which has been one of the chief projects of the council for the past 25 years, will be portrayed in a special moving picture shown for the first time.

The council, co-operating with the Jewish Federation for Social Service, established a nonsectarian children's section of the Morris Hirsch dental clinic. During 1936, 313 children were treated. A hospital committee calls upon patients at Battle Hill, Hospital 48 and Grady hospital.

A committee stands ready to aid the community in all drives, Red Cross, Forget-me-not and Poppy Day sales, and any emergency which may arise. Work for the blind is carried on with the Fifth District Association for the Blind, and the Red Cross, aiding in the sale of mops, brooms and towels made by the blind, and transcribing books and so forth into Braille.

An active sewing committee furnished 180 garments for various social agencies last year. The council also gives service to German refugees in Georgia. Along the lines of cultural activities the committees on peace and education are sponsoring a course of lectures by Dr. Phillip Davidson, professor of history at Agnes Scott, attended by over 100 interested persons.

CIO CHIEFS DRAFT STEEL DEMANDS

SWOC Congress Opens To-Morrow on Note of Peace With Capital.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Peace between labor and capital, to cope with the business recession, was the keynote sounded today by Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, for the three-day National Steel Workers' Congress opening Tuesday.

"Our whole program is based on peaceful relations with the industry," Murray asserted. "We regard the sanctity of contracts as transcending anything else; our record in that respect speaks for itself."

The primary objective of the convention will be to consider what new wage, hour and policy provisions will be asked of the 445 steel processing, manufacturing and fabricating firms now bound by one-year contracts with the union, when those contracts expire in March.

Meanwhile, a score of CIO chiefs scanned with deep concern the 1,700 resolutions submitted by local lodges of this favored child of John L. Lewis' industrial unions.

TROTSKY CLEARED BY DEWEY INQUIRY
Conviction in Moscow Trial Declared Frame-Up.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik without a country, was declared innocent tonight by an international commission of inquiry of Russian charges of terrorism, sabotage and Fascist conspiracy.

This finding was read by the commission's chairman, Dr. John Dewey, 78-year-old philosopher and liberal author who, in the past, has defended Communism.

The commission decided the sensational Moscow trial of a year ago, in which a Russian court found Trotsky guilty, was a "frame-up." Trotsky, absent from Russia at the time, subsequently made his home in Mexico, where he still lives.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED WHEN TRAINS COLLIDE
SALVISA, Ky., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Four railroad men were killed and five others injured in a head-on collision of two Southern Railway System freight trains near this little south central Kentucky town early today.

Both engines, penetrating each other by the force of the impact, overturned and were buried under the debris of 10 telescoping freight cars.

The dead included the engineer and fireman of one of the locomotives, which was pulling an extra train, and two brakemen.

The dead man was identified by papers as Ernest S. Davis, 38, of Tampa, Fla., Lieutenant M. B. Petty, of the Atlanta police, said. His companion gave his name as Jack Townsend, 32, of Tampa.

Townsend received burns on the left arm and side when his arm fell in the stove, awakening him and probably saving his life, police said.

DEAN NOE AND WIFE END MARITAL RIFT

Churchman and Mate, Who Sued Him for Divorce, Become Reconciled.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 12.—(UP)—Mrs. Israel Harding Noe, who six years ago precipitated a sensational divorce trial when she filed charges of physical abandonment against her husband, dean of St. Mary's cathedral here, tonight confirmed that they had been reconciled.

Mrs. Noe said she and her two children would re-establish their home at the deanery this week. Dean Noe, who has served the Episcopal cathedral here for 17 years, made the formal announcement of the reconciliation in which he said:

"I wish to announce that Mrs. Noe and the children are returning to the deanery and our home will be happily united again."

Two-Part Sacrament.
"I have always believed that marriage is a divine sacrament, composed of two parts, the life of generation and the life of regeneration. We have fulfilled the function of generation, being blessed with lovely children, and now comes the task of building up a life of regeneration and throwing around our children the protection of a permanent and abiding home."

Mrs. Noe filed divorce action against her husband in 1931, charging willful desertion and cruel and inhuman treatment because of physical abandonment. Her main fight for divorce was based on the plea the right to bear a male child had been denied her.

Suit Fought By Dean.
Dean Noe fought the suit, stating on the witness stand his views on religion and marriage and how he was trying to live an "absolute idealism" in life in accordance with the laws of the Episcopal church.

The divorce was denied by the chancery court, and subsequent appeals to the circuit court and the Tennessee supreme court were unsuccessful.

Dean and Mrs. Noe have been separated since the trial in 1931.

FOES OF WAGE BILL PLAN NEW FIGHT

Leaders Confident of Passage of Measure by Wednesday or Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(UP)—A three-way split among proponents of the senate-approved wage-hour bill tonight spurred foes of the measure to consolidate their opposition in a last-ditch fight to defeat it when it reaches the house floor tomorrow.

The bill, petitioned from a recalcitrant house rules committee after being pigeon-holed for four months, will promptly head into two crucial votes, either of which might mean defeat. The first involves parliamentary procedure rarely used. Speaker William B. Bankhead will recognize Chairman Mary Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the house labor committee, on a motion to discharge the rules committee from further consideration of a rule limiting debate.

The house will then vote on adopting the rule, if consideration is approved. An adverse vote would block the bill. Despite this leaders tonight were confident of passage of the measure by Wednesday or Thursday.

SENATE SPONSORS SEEK FARM VOTE THIS WEEK
WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Senate sponsors of the new farm bill indicated today they would try hard to get a vote on crop control legislation this week.

The measure, a companion measure last week. Congress expects to wind up its special session December 22, and administration leaders are eager to perform as expected on President Roosevelt's lead-off legislative item before they go home.

WEEK-END CRASHES TAKE LIVES OF 100
North Carolina Reports Toll of Nine.

By The Associated Press.
Automobile accidents on the nation's highways, made hazardous by snow and rain, took a toll of more than 100 lives over the week end.

Florida Trucker Is Killed Here By Gas Fumes From Stove in Auto

Poisonous fumes from an improvised charcoal stove killed a Florida trucker here yesterday as he slept in the truck's cab, tired at the end of his long drive with holiday fruit.

A companion was admitted to Grady hospital in critical condition, but was given a good chance to recover.

The dead man was identified by papers as Ernest S. Davis, 38, of Tampa, Fla., Lieutenant M. B. Petty, of the Atlanta police, said. His companion gave his name as Jack Townsend, 32, of Tampa.

Townsend received burns on the left arm and side when his arm fell in the stove, awakening him and probably saving his life, police said.

INSTALLMENT III

But some one bent down and picked up her bag. When he stood up, holding the bag and to her, she heard his tall, young handsome man's voice.

"Yes. Even in panic, she later thought, she noticed him. His face was as bronzed as his hair, his eyes were brown. He had a firm but amusing mouth.

"Yours?" he asked.

"Yes," Karen said breathlessly. "Thank you. I . . ."

He smiled. "It's all right." Still smiling, he turned away.

Outside she walked hurriedly to Broadway in the rain. If she had lost her bag, if somebody else had claimed it . . . The thought sickened her. Tomorrow she would go to a bank.

The traffic light was red on Broadway. Feeling the rain beating on her small black hat, feeling it drip from the ends of her hair, she waited impatiently. Who was he, the man who had said in a deep, suave voice, "It's all right"? She would never know.

Just as the light was changing, a large green car came to an abrupt stop. Karen saw him the instant he saw her.

He smiled again. "Hello. You're getting soaked. Get in!"

She got in car with a strange, handsome man who had picked up her bag in the lobby?

"Thank you but I can't."

"Don't talk nonsense. Get in. You're holding up traffic."

It was the maddest thing she had ever done but she slid into the luxurious car beside him and turned to look at him.

He smiled into her eyes. "You might," Philip Ashley said, "put your hat on straight."

Suddenly fear and embarrassment left Karen. It was queer, she thought, straightening the little black hat over her dark curls, that she wasn't afraid of riding down Broadway in a luxurious green car with a strange man. And on her second night in New York.

"Philip Ashley smiled again. "That's better." Then, "Let's introduce ourselves." He hesitated and said, "I'm Philip Ashley."

Karen turned her head and raised her eyes. Philip Ashley! She said his name over and over. Philip Ashley, the playwright! Why, it was his play she had seen tonight. She asked his hesitancy in telling her his name. He had said it quietly and modestly.

"I'm Karen Mallare. Of course you noticed how scared I was when my bag got away."

"You shouldn't carry a lot of money with you."

"I never will again. But you see, I just came to New York last night."

He glanced at her with a frown. "You mean you just came here last night—to live?"

"Yes. I came to go on the stage." She expected his sudden smile. "You're the third person who has felt sorry for me when I said that. Smiled and felt sorry for the girl. She thinks she can be an actress. That's what you think."

He liked her voice. Glancing at her swiftly, he found himself liking the delicately chiseled features and the absurdly long black lashes that curled upward.

"Forgive us for your cynicism," he said. "But you seem to have a good faith in yourself."

For him it had become a habit to ten." Karen folded her hands. She thought she was magnificent forgot everything. I kept thinking 'To be like Brenda Bond.'"

"That's what everybody thinks. To her, you see, I owe everything. Ten years ago I landed in New York with a college degree, a full outfit, and something worth $50. Oh, yes, and my play. Somebody introduced me to Brenda, who read the play and insisted upon having it. She's my pet idol and my dearest friend ever since. She's a grand lady, speaking of her, how would I like to meet her? Now!"

"You don't mean it!"

He laughed. "Oh, but I do! My name is Helene Ward is has a party. She's always having parties. There'll be mobs there. Brenda will be there. She told tonight."

"But I'm not dressed for a party."

"You look fine. Besides, there be so many people there nobody will notice."

Jerry had been right, Karen thought. Anything could happen here!

Their coffee and sandwiches served, they went out of the taurant and walked to his car. rain had stopped. Karen thought "Is this real? Is this really happening to me?"

"Penthouse." Philip said to the boy on the elevator.

A breathtaking ascent followed. As soon as she stepped from the elevator, Karen found herself in the largest, loveliest room she ever seen, crowded almost overflowing with elegantly draped
